I started out by conducting research on Sedona, Arizona in the 1920s. Arizona was a popular spot for filming at that time and it was home to the movie the "Call of the Canyon." Additionally, that movie which was based on the book was partly filmed at the Mayhew Lodge. I decided that my speakeasy was going to be a speakeasy in the basement of the Mayhew Lodge that a lot of visiting celebrities frequented. I then furthered my research into speakeasies in general and learned about identification cards and what might be on menus at the time. I made my alcohol packaging, disguised as a medicine bottle fit for the prohibition era so I also research what medicine bottles looked like at the time as well.

PART 2

Create a screen-based outcome to serve the needs of a specific persona, driven by an activity-centered approach to design.

BRAND EXPANSION

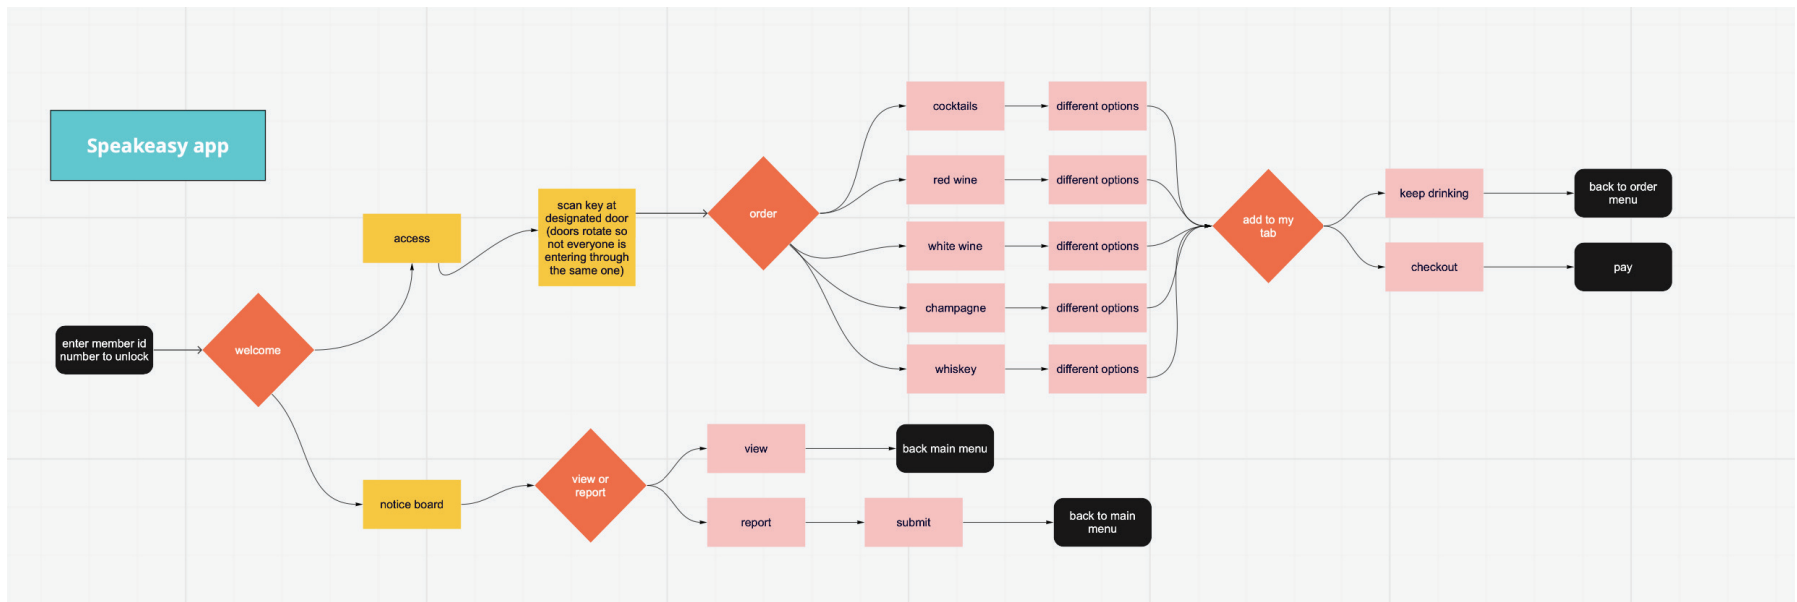

THE MAYHEW

MAYHEW

MEDICINE

When it came to adding in and expanding my past brand I really had to dive further into the brand overall. Previously, I had created a speakeasy design located in the basement of a star-studded lodge in Sedona, Arizona. So I knew that the Lodge itself could also be a brand. The alcohol packaging I had created was a front for the speakeasy so I knew I could also expand that brand. So really within this project I had the opportunity to expand 3 separate brands into one family. So, the Mayhew Lodge and Mayhew Medicine joined the Mayhew Lounge.

APP - PROCESS

Feedback:

- expanding the function of the app
- include a "paywall" for a first screen
- it is currently hard to get around so work more on navigation

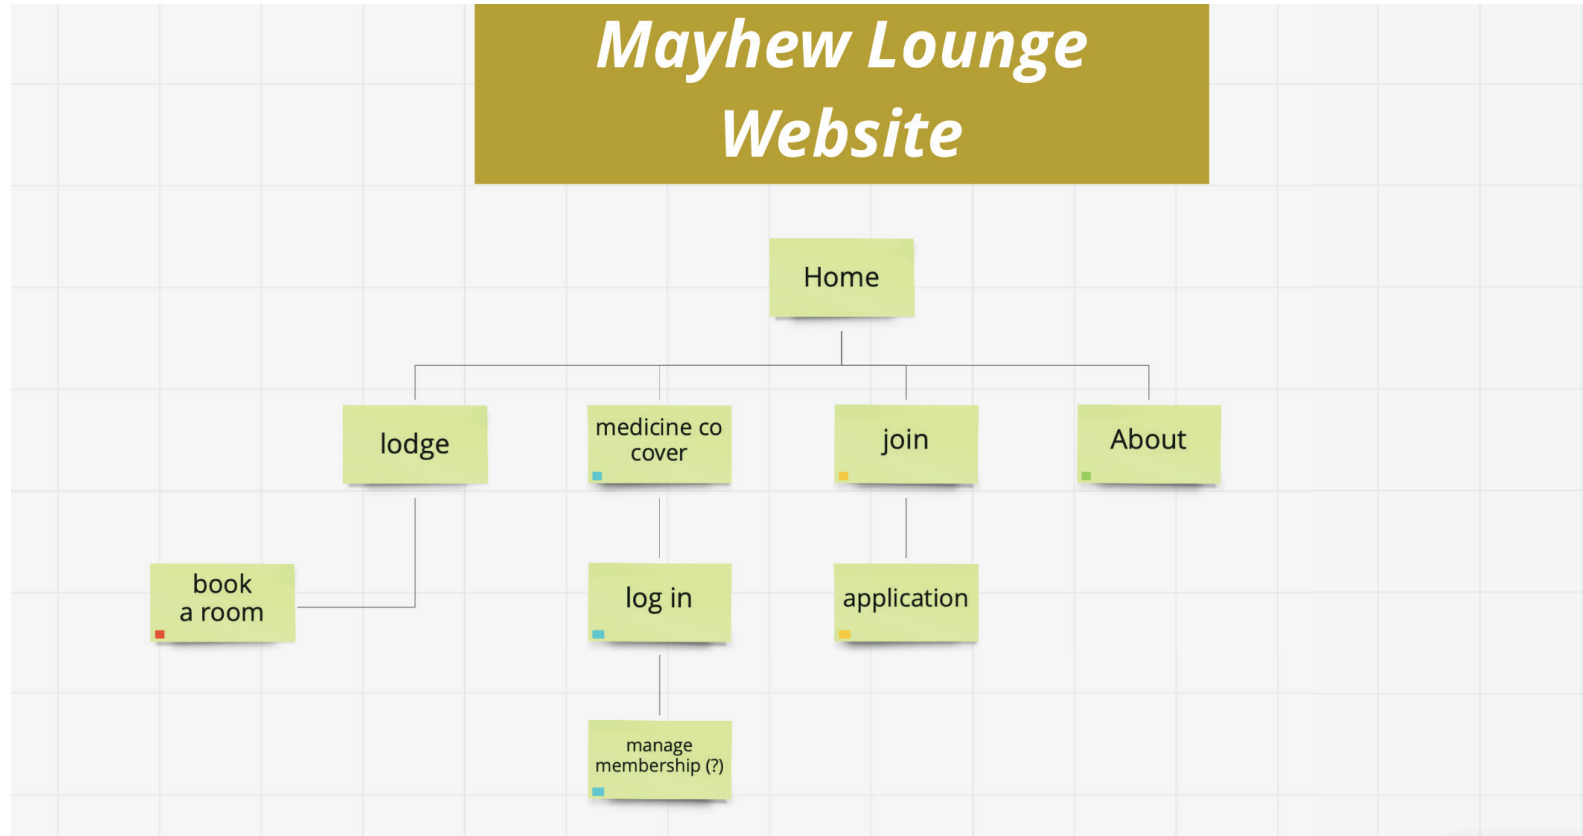

APP - FINAL

Here is a QR Code to the final app prototype! Here are also a few of the final screens which include the addition of a “paywall” screen and a panic button which adds some more function to the app. I also went through and added in more screens and back arrows to improve the overall navigation of the app

FINAL THOUGHTS

My favorite part about this project was being able to back a lot of my design decisions in research and being able to have such an in-depth persona that I could use for inspiration. I think this process also taught me a lot about dealing with clients since the second part to this project really make me think how best to add in a screen based opportunity.
